CAROL'S CORNER

by Carol Golyski, Co-President

The physician leaned over the patient's bed and said "Your cells will make you immortal!" The dying patient replied, "I am glad that my pain would come to some good for someone." The year was 1951 and the patient was a 31 year old female of African American heritage who was suffering from metastasis of an aggressive form of cervical cancer. Cells taken from her tumor are still living today in 2017!

The cells harvested from her tumor were massed produced

("cloned") which provided many advances in medical research. Her cells were first utilized in testing the efficacy of the polio vaccine. Her cells were subsequently used in testing cosmetics against cellular damage thus eliminating animal studies and in testing against the effects of radiation to determine how a nuclear bomb destroys cells. They were put in a centrifuge to test the effects of gravity thus giving researchers a better understanding of a cell's reaction to deep sea diving and space flights. They were also placed aboard a spaceflight to study the effect of zero gravity on cell reproduction. Her cells were used to test the efficacy of steroids, chemotherapeutic drugs, hormones, vitamins and environmental stress.

As a clinical laboratory scientist, I learned about cell cultures, passage of cell lines and HeLa cells. For over forty years, I never knew the derivation of the word "HeLa" and I know most of the scientific community did not either. It was not until Rebecca Skloot published her book, The Immortal Life of Henrietta Laks, that the incredible story of Henrietta and her cells became common knowledge. Quite simply her cells were named by taking the first two initials of her first and last name.

Henrietta was born in 1930 and grew up on a tobacco farm in Clover, Virginia. She and her husband were part of the Great Migration and moved to Baltimore is search of better employment opportunities. When she was diagnosed with cervical cancer, her tumor cells were studied and sent to other scientists without her or her family's knowledge. Her cells were massed produced and launched a multimillion dollar business. Unfortunately, the thinking of the physicians at that time was benevolent deception. Physicians took a paternalistic attitude by withholding vital information from their patients as a means to avoid upsetting them. Unfortunately, Henrietta's family was living in poverty and did not receive any compensation for her cells.

Her family's discovery of how Henrietta's cell lineage was used is the basis of Skloot's book. Her publication has received numerous awards and has been made into a movie starring Oprah Winfrey as Henrietta's daughter. The subject matter of the book lends itself to discussions of medical ethics, treatment of African Americans patients, and veracity in medical practice.

Henrietta can be considered a true medical philanthropist and to date, her cells continue to divide in the laboratory. She truly helped numerous people through her gift of her malignant cells.

CYNTHIA'S INSIGHTS By Cynthia Mehary, Co-President

EMERGING LEADER 2017

AAUW Buffalo Branch is proud to have chosen Lynne Rapin as Emerging Leader for the year 2016 – 2017.

After almost a decade of enjoying AAUW Buffalo Branch's annual book sale, a member encouraged her to join, which she did in 2012. Since then, she has demonstrated a strong commitment to AAUW. In 2014, Lynne graciously accepted the position of Secretary/Parliamentarian on the Buffalo Branch board. For the 2016 International Women's Day program, she was instrumental in securing our keynote speaker. Recently, Lynne assumed the role of Tech Savvy Treasurer, along with her duties as Secretary.

Lynne is an eager participant/volunteer in the annual Tech Savvy Conference as well as the annual AAUW Book Sale. She has maintained a table at the Book Sale for the past five years and has assisted the Program Vice-President. Additionally, she participates in several of our Study/

Interest Groups – Dinner by the Book, Bead Weaving/Jewelry Making and WNY Culinary Delights.

Lynne has attended two recent NYS-AAUW Conventions – Grand Island in 2015 and Syracuse this past April - as well as the AAUW-NYS Summer Leadership Conference in July of 2016.

When not involved in AAUW activities, she enjoys "hanging out" with her two grandchildren, reading, traveling, bike riding and geocaching.

Congratulations Lynne Rapin, Emerging Leader 2017.

AAUW BUFFALO BRANCH 2017 ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

Marguerite Collesano was selected for the American Association of University Women Buffalo Branch Achievement Award for 2017. She has been an active member of the Buffalo Branch, representing the organization as President, Vice President for Membership, Cultural Diversity Chairperson, and AAUW book sale volunteer. Marguerite has been a role model for many years, demonstrating the mission of the American Association of University Women by advancing equity for women and girls through advocacy, education, philanthropy, and research.

Marguerite graduated from D'Youville College with a Major in History. She earned a Master of Science, Education from State University College of New York at Buffalo. Marguerite was a teacher in the Western New York Area from 1964 to 1996. She shared her knowledge, experience, love of history and cultural not only with her students, but with her community as she was a consultant for the National Organization of Italian-American Women and consultant to the Vanderbilt University National Endowment Humanities Conferences. Marguerite has demonstrated her diverse global community skills by providing workshops and conferences involving such topics as "China in Transition" using slides and lecture at the International Institute. Buffalo and at the Buffalo Teacher Center "Moving Towards a Global Perspective: Concepts and Strategies for Teaching Global Skills." Marguerite presented her Annual Conference Paper -Education and Ethnicity: Five Biographical Portraits of Italian-American Women at the American-Italian Historical Association in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Marguerite has been empowering girls and women as individuals and as a community, improving the lives of women and their families in the Western New York area through education, and sharing her love for history and cultural diversity. Marguerite was recognized for her community professionalism when she was appointed Trustee of the Statler Foundation by Judge Joseph Mattina in 1992 as the second women in that position which is a lifetime appointment. The multimillion dollar foundation, established in 1926, awards scholarships and grants to colleges and students in the hospitality industry.

PUBLIC POLICY

By MARIAN DEUTSCHMAN PUBLIC POLICY CHAIR

MADE IN USA

When asked why he doesn't lead by example and have more of his products from the Donald J. Trump Collection, made in the U.S., President Trump responded, "They don't even make this stuff here." They do. The rebound in Made in USA clothes and shoes, first seen in 2011, continued in 2013 with U.S. manufacturing of clothes up 6.2% and shoes up 8.5%. But President Trump is correct that most clothing sold in the U.S. is made overseas. According to the American Apparel & Footwear Association, 97 percent of apparel and 98 percent of shoes sold in the U.S. are made overseas.

However, it's important to recognize that most products we consume are not produced by just one country. With the onset of globalization, there was a transformation in the way we make things. I was surprised to learn that U.S. trade numbers consider our imports as made entirely by the last country that shipped them to us, even if some components were made in the U.S. and elsewhere. Most of the products that the U.S. imports from China actually contain a significant amount of American-made content.

President Trump threatened to impose tariffs or taxes on American companies that move their manufacturing overseas. On the campaign trail, he criticized companies for moving production to cheaper offshore locations. Some American businesses are bringing jobs home again. This trend of reshoring or insourcing is likely to grow in the coming years, as the cost gap between building overseas and building at home narrows. Greater quality was the major factor cited by some companies for moving jobs back to the U.S. In another example, Chinese labor costs are rising about 15% to 20% a year. That makes producing goods in China not nearly as cheap as it used to be. A total of 31 states have seen triple digit export growth to China since 2006.

According to the Congressional Research Service, no comprehensive data exist on the number of production and services workers whose jobs have moved overseas. Just because we lose jobs doesn't mean foreign competition is responsible for killing jobs. We lose and create millions of jobs every year as part of normal turnover. Some jobs are lost due to automation. MIT academics foresee dismal prospects for many types of jobs as powerful new technologies are increasingly adopted not only in manufacturing, clerical, and retail work but in professions such as law, financial services, education, and medicine. It's also entirely possible that as industries begin to assimilate technology into their business models, that it will create new jobs. It should be noted that the U.S. spends less on retraining than any other advanced economy. We need to align education and investment with a look to the future rather than restoration of jobs of the past. The solutions to problems of this century will require the training, skills, perspective and approaches that come from diverse minds.

2017 OLGA LINDBERG SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED By Pauline Dyson, Committee Chair

Over 30 applications for these graduate/ professional school scholarships of $10, 000 and $5,000 were reviewed by AAUW Buffalo Branch members Stacey Johnson, Carol Golyski, Judy Weidemann, Maryann Hope, Sharon Meer, and Sonya Miller.

Outstanding women in the applicant pool met the requirements of residency, grade, and accomplishments. Only after hours of review, deliberation and collaborative decisionmaking was the selection made.

The $10,000 winner is Emily Niehl of West Seneca. Emily graduated Magna Cum Laude with a BS degree from Duquesne University and is a first year medical student at UB. Emily is part of a program that thanks organ and body donors to the Medical School. She mentors girls and young women to consider careers in medicine, in association with a group entitled DoctHERS, and aids Buffalo elementary school of technology students with Math and English.

All this outreach in the community has not diminished Emily's accomplishments in the medical labs where she has excelled, not only in anatomy and dissection, but also in her presentation of research findings. Her professional goal is to emphasize preventative medicine and medical humanities through a pediatric and internal medicine practice.

The $5,000 Olga Lindberg award goes to Meghan Bauer of North Tonawanda, a UB Summa Cum Laude graduate in psychology. When she was diagnosed with cancer as a college freshman, Meghan decided to focus her psychological studies on helping adolescents dealing with cancer or mental/emotional depression gain a positive attitude about themselves. She interned at the Villa of Hope, a residential facility for troubled adolescences.

Meghan's academic studies and research is toward a PH.D. in Clinical Psychology, which is directly related to her goal of using that knowledge and experience to better the lives of those who suffer emotional and traumatic illnesses.

Both OLGA LINDBERG winners will be introduced and honored at the September dinner opening the branch 2017-2018 program year.

Tech Savvy 2017: "The Amazing Authentic You"

Patricia Baxter (The Links, Incorporated – Erie County (NY) Chapter) Tamara Brown (Founder - Tech Savvy and former president of AAUW- Buffalo Branch) - Betty Smith (The Links, Incorporated – Erie County (NY) Chapter) – Ruby Williams (AAUW- Buffalo Branch)

Tamara Brown, Founder of Tech Savvy, members of AAUW, sponsoring branch, volunteers from community organizations, and students gathered at the United Way on Friday, March 3, 2017, to prepare for the 2017 Tech Savvy conference held on Saturday, March 18, 2017, at the University of Buffalo North Campus.

Tech Savvy was founded in 2006 by the AAUW Buffalo (NY) Branch, under the leadership of the former branch president, Tamara Brown. With the support of Praxair, Baxter and local community organizations, five hundred 6th – 9th grade girls for the middle school program, approximately one hundred 10th-12th grade girls, and 200 parents registered for this all day conference.

The conference theme this year was "The Amazing, Authentic You!" embracing empowerment, self-identity, and purpose. The annual conference is designed to inspire middle school girls to pursue STEM careers (science, technology, engineering, and math)—and to provide the adults in their lives with relevant information. Tech Savvy features 20+ workshops for the girls plus four savvy skills workshops, introducing critical life success skills such as advocacy, negotiating, interview preparation, and ethical decision making. Since Tech Savvy is not just for students, adults enjoyed fun and enlightening sessions that included the best of ways to help girls to see the bright, fantastic futures that exist and how STEM can help to solve the problems in the future.

The keynote speaker was Bo Young Lee, Global Diversity & Inclusion Practice Leader for Marsh International. She holds an MBA from New York University Stern School of Business and a BBA magna cum laude from the University of Michigan Ross School of Business. Ms. Lee has 15+ years of experience related to diversity & inclusion, organizational development as a diversity leader and a consultant. Additionally, Bonita Seaton, of NASA, former conference speaker, was in attendance and presented a workshop.

Conference volunteers gathered at Templeton Landing Restaurant, Buffalo, NY to launch the event. Hon. E. Jeannette Ogden, Erie County Supreme Court, representing The Links Incorporated, Erie County (NY) Chapter, presented Tamara Brown with a bouquet of roses, which represented a special thanks for creating value, purpose, and meaning to the development and implementation of such a unique program that excites minds, empowers and motivates actions among our young girls of Western New York. "Being aware that research findings reveal that girls often don't see themselves in STEM roles, and so this year, the conference will focus on how girls don't need to lose themselves while becoming a STEM practitioner" -- Tamara Brown.

Calling all AAUW Members: The world needs more women leaders. The world needs YOU!

Thank YOU for making Tech Savvy Absolutely Amazing

What an absolutely, authentically amazing day you made for many girls, parents and teachers in March!

Special thanks to all of the committee chairs, members, and volunteers who made the day wonderful, safe, and enlightening. We had nearly 200 members and friends volunteering for the day—including about 75 workshop presenters and session leaders.

We continue to be amazed by the support and generosity of those who come to join us from afar. Many of you were inspired by Bo—who gave a frank and honest pep talk to the girls. Buffalo native, Bonnie Seaton, had glowing things to say this year about her third trip to the conference.

And, we're amazed about the girls who are going afar! At the keynote, you heard from one of our students Kelleytina Williams, who is off to Hampton to study computer science—inspired by her exposure in Tech Savvy since 4th grade!

Special thanks also to our donors who help make this program possible:

- > AAUW Buffalo: $5,000
- Praxair: $23,000, with an additional gift

Thank

Thank you to all who helped with programs this year, especially Lynne Rapin, who helped many times with name tags, encouragement, preparing print programs, and planning. Also, Mary Crocker, Stacy Johnson, and each member who participated by helping or attending this year's programs including Mary Ellen Shaughnessy for the program on Literature and the Law.

of $2,500 for bolt-on programming

- Baxter: $2,500
- UB Engineering: $3,000 toward defraying venue expenses
- ➢ IEEE: $200

What's really amazing? You, the volunteers. Each year, you give your all for the girls. This year, we had several opportunities to really make a difference. Girls come to the conference with many challenges. (A quick example: One student this year was battling the loss of a parent and the sickness of another parent. She contemplated hurting herself, and a volunteer took the time to notice—and we helped, hopefully, to make a difference.) So, your time-short term and long term-makes an enormous difference. Thank you for taking the time! Whether you set up or tore down, served lunch, "woman" ed the buffet line or table, organized or talked or greeted—you and the time you took has made a difference!

Do you want to help with next year's Tech Savvy ?

We'll decide soon about any summer activities. Planning sessions for Tech Savvy 13 will begin in August. So, if you want to get involved, please call Tamara at (716)949-2413 or send an email soon (tbforaauw@cs.com).

Great thanks to Judy Weidemann and Kathleen Murphy who planned and organized the May Annual Meeting.

Finally, a thank you to Carol Golyski and Cynthia Mehary for their participation.

Women Making a Difference

AAUW has been empowering women as individuals and as a community since 1881. For more than 130 years, we have worked together as a national grassroots organization to improve the lives of millions of women and their families.

Mission: AAUW advances equity for women and girls through advocacy, education, philanthropy, and research.

Vision: AAUW empowers all women and girls to reach their highest potential.

Value Statement: By joining AAUW, you belong to a community that breaks educational and economic barriers so that all women have a fair chance.

In principle and practice, AAUW values and seeks a diverse membership. There shall be no barriers to full participation in this organization on the basis of gender, race, creed, age, sexual orientation, national origin, disability, or class.
